PERSONAL HISTORY

Robert Young was born and raised in Nashville, Tennessee. After graduating from Hillsboro High School in 1973, Robert was employed by several residential construction companies and was involved, on site, in all phases of residential construction. After receiving an Associate Degree in 1980, Robert joined the Nashville office of Lynchburg, Virginia-based architectural/engineering firm, Wiley and Wilson. Mr. Young's responsibilities primarily involved preparation and coordination of architectural construction drawings, and also included drawing documents within the civil, structural, mechanical, plumbing and electrical departments.

In the summer of 1983, Mr. Young was offered a position with the newly formed architectural firm of Adkisson Harrison & Rick Architects, Incorporated. Mr. Young was involved in all phases of architectural construction document production and drawing coordination with consultants and construction administration. He was also heavily involved in the firm's migration from board drafting to computerized document production during the 1990's.

Mr. Young continues to be an experienced leader of the team at Adkisson & Associates, Architects, and is currently involved in the aforementioned duties in a wide range of residential and commercial projects.
